Your Majesty, Right Honourable Lady Chief Justice,

Minister of Justice,

An Open Letter Regarding Constitutional Silence, Judicial Threats, Educational Deprivation, and the Erosion of Legal Integrity

Letter No. 3

Open Letter No. 3

What I have come to understand and evidence showing me is that the illusion of an ethical code of conduct does not arise from those who are told to follow a code of ethics, but from those who have created the illusion of it.

When a head of state leads citizens to believe there is no legal obligation to ensure that the law reduces inequality and promotes ethical compliance, evidence is leading that the head of state benefits from inequality and injustice. It also suggests that the judiciary has been selected to operate within a long-standing code of nepotism and co-operation with larger institutions, preserving itself. Those like myself disabled and non-natives, are expected to capitulate to injustice and to the pecking order.

This, in turn, depends on control of voice and narrative, ensuring that a person submits to injustice.

That is how coercion arises, followed by ambiguous language techniques designed to make the same law mean different things to different people, so that, despite the evidence, the law is not applied equally.

As an autistic, dyslexic and non-native person, I have therefore decided to examine these ambiguous language techniques, which seem to have been developed to confuse those without specialist linguistic knowledge. My aim is to study forensic linguistics, despite what the college did and was permitted to do: failing to return assignments and dictating me to repeat an entire academic year—not for lack of merit, but through fear of allowing me to progress. Brighton Metropolitan College knew from the beginning the fields I wished to enter, and the fear of my progress became more evident. By forcing me to repeat the year, they hoped to deter me from further study. In reality, Brighton Metropolitan College achieved its goal by destroying my passion and thirst for knowledge.

In year 2024, the same teacher—who, mentally bullied and tormented me—told me in class: ‘You are doing well’, and later: ‘Your dyslexia report is nothing special. Next year the questions will be the same and you will be faster at reading and answering the questions.’ That is why I have decided to take the college to court: to expose this culture of discrimination against non-native and disabled students. In Brighton and Hove, many non-native and disabled students rely on Brighton Metropolitan College—now the Chichester College Group—for their education, and government funding often depends on passes in GCSE English and Mathematics.

This open letter concerns a broader level of discrimination—from law to educational standards—that are filed away in cabinets but not followed through in day-to-day practice in education and in the legal system.

This is now my third open letter to His Majesty, the Lady Chief Justice, and the Minister of Justice.

Why publish these as open letters?

To show that the illusion of law, educational progress and justice is not created for people like me: a non-native and disabled citizen.

The documents show a mechanism aimed at exhausting people mentally, so that they keep quiet, accept capitulation, and accept the pecking order.

If everyone accepts this, nothing changes. The illusion remains, and only the language of ambiguity expands.

In short, the technique is a plain psychology: repeated patterns that create an illusion of ethics and equality.

Change does not begin at the bottom. It must begin with the head of state—but not through the encouragement of systemic discrimination, nor with an expectation that non-native and disabled citizens will capitulate because the existing code assumes that the ‘survival of the fittest’ is the only relevant rule across many sectors.

What concerns me increasingly is that, although I was not born here, I consider this my country—not emotionally, but by my own code of conduct: I have invested time and made contributions, however modest.

The English language has, over centuries, been used to apply persuasive techniques that have flourished across many fields, and many countries have copied the philosophy and psychology behind them. To me, they remain bound to a plain code of operations: the pecking order and its survival-of-the-fittest mechanism.

The English language is indeed alluring—I am an admirer. But my interest lies not in repeating ambiguity, but learning about advancing language and progress.

Each citizen is taught that human civilisation rests on a code of conduct, ethics and equality. Yet the lived reality is the code of the pecking order.

Yours sincerely,

Re: Basement Flat, 10 Paston Place, Brighton BN2 1HA

Dear Sirs,

Please find enclosed my cheque payable to "Drivemanor Ltd" in the sum of £6,600. I appropriate this payment strictly to rent for January to November 2025 inclusive at £600 per calendar month (as per your 18 June 2024 section 13 notice).

For the avoidance of doubt, this is rent under the assured tenancy that vested in me by operation of section 17 Housing Act 1988 on 18 December 2024.

As a reasonable adjustment under the Equality Act 2010, please keep communications in writing by email.

Yours faithfully,

Mr Yunus Emre Tariq

Letter to Drivemanor Ltd (30:10:2025) Jan–Nov 2025 rent at £600 pcm.pdf 124 KB

Dear Mr Wraith,

Claim: M01BN055 – Tariq v Drivemanor Ltd (substituted for Mr Monti). (OPEN CORRESPONDENCE)

1) Notice of rent tender (proof attached) Royal Mail tracking SE298292076GB shows Delivered to Drivemanor Ltd (Company No. 01075637), 4th Floor, Park Gate, 161–163 Preston Road, Brighton BN1 6AF. I enclose:

A. my covering letter dated 30/10/2025 appropriating the enclosed cheque for £6,600 strictly to rent for January–November 2025 at £600 pcm (per the landlord's s.13 Housing Act 1988 cover letter dated 18/06/2024); and

B. Royal Mail proof of delivery.

This is rent under the assured tenancy that vested in me by operation of s.17 Housing Act 1988 on 18/12/2024. Any refusal to bank it should not be treated as "arrears": the rent has been tendered and remains available.

C. cheque for £6,600 strictly to rent for January–November 2025

2) Application status and request for on-paper directions (CPR 23.8)

My N244 with Appendix A / Draft Order / Supplemental WS (YET1–YET4) was filed and served on 16/10/2025; the fee has been taken and an N215 filed. I respectfully ask the Court to determine the application on the papers and adopt the directions in my Draft Order (16/10/2025).

For clarity, any timetable (e.g., 14 days for specific disclosure and rent-handling steps) should run from service of the sealed order, with the "unless" provision as drafted (debarment if not complied with).

3) EX107 transcript request and judge identification

On 21/10/2025 I submitted Form EX107 for the hearing on 15/10/2025 and referred to the N24 order dated 14/10/2025. I have not received acknowledgment.

Please confirm: (i) receipt/status of the EX107 request (and any fee quote/reference), and (ii) the name of the judge presided at the hearing on 15/10/2025.

4) Equality Act 2010 – reasonable adjustments

Please record written communications only.
